ALL SADDLING WILL BE IN THE STABLE. Horses are to enter the paddock in sequential, saddle cloth numerical order. When leaving the paddock, horses are to be released when entering the course and not in the chute. NO SADDLING IN THE PADDOCK.

PINNEYS: Grooms, please pick up pinneys in front of Bedford barn to wear to the paddock. Pinneys will be collected after each Groom releases their horse onto the course.

FOLLOWING THE FINISH, all horses, except the winner, are to be ridden back to the paddock and be picked up by their groom in the paddock. NO GROOM PICK UPS ON THE COURSE.

REMINDER TO HORSEMEN CONCERNING HEAT ILLNESS: horsemen are reminded that treatment of overheated horses is based upon science. Those principles are applied by veterinarians attending the horses racing and must be adhered to for the management of heat illness.

The objective is to reduce body heat as quickly as possible and to reduce high brain temperatures. This is accomplished by the application of cold water CONTINUOUSLY to the horse's body and the administration of selected pharmaceuticals intravenously to reduce brain temperatures, most commonly detomidine. This combination has proven very effective and is based on good research in racing over the past few years. Non-steroidal anti-inflammatory medications may also be used.

The old adage that we should keep the horse moving and forcing them to walk prevents adequate cooling and the efficient administration of the necessary medications by veterinarians. STOP THE HORSE - cool and treat.

No one wants to see a horse go down when struggling with heat and very slow steps forward after treatment may then be indicated, but under the supervision of the attending veterinarian. When the horse has made an adequate recovery, walking or transport may be advised.

Most meets are now set up to provide adequate cooling either with fixed water hoses or portable pressure sprayers followed by cooling fans in the stable area. The portable water tanks with pressure hoses, as utilized at many races this spring, have been a very useful tool.

Thank you to everyone for your support of the Virginia Fall Races. Good luck and a safe day to all participants.
